

You were put in the trash can instead of the compost bin where you really belong. The trash truck picks you up and takes you to the landfill.

Go to the landfill.

You were put in the trash can instead of the compost bin where you really belong. The trash truck picks you up and takes you to the landfill.

Go to the landfill.

You were put in the trash can instead of the compost bin where you really belong. The trash truck picks you up and takes you to the landfill.

Go to the landfill.

You were put in the trash can instead of the compost bin where you really belong. The trash truck picks you up and takes you to the landfill.

Go to the landfill.

A farmer has mixed compost in with the soil on the farm. Minerals and nutrients from the compost have helped new fruits and vegetables to grow. You are now a fruit or vegetable, ready to be sold at the market!

Go to the store.

A farmer has mixed compost in with the soil on the farm. Minerals and nutrients from the compost have helped new fruits and vegetables to grow. You are now a fruit or vegetable, ready to be sold at the market!

Go to the store.

A farmer has mixed compost in with the soil on the farm. Minerals and nutrients from the compost have helped new fruits and vegetables to grow. You are now a fruit or vegetable, ready to be sold at the market!

Go to the store.

A farmer has mixed compost in with the soil on the farm. Minerals and nutrients from the compost have helped new vegetables to grow. You are what's left of the plant, like roots and leaves, after the vegetable has been harvested.

Go to the compost.

Landfills are where waste is buried. There is no air or space for you to decompose. Many years have gone by since you were put in the landfill by someone who chose not to compost you.

Stay at the landfill.

Landfills are where waste is buried. There is no air or space for you to decompose. Many years have gone by since you were put in the landfill by someone who chose not to compost you.

Stay at the landfill.

Landfills are where waste is buried. There is no air or space for you to decompose. Many years have gone by since you were put in the landfill by someone who chose not to compost you.

Stay at the landfill.

Landfills are where waste is buried. Luckily a bird flew by the landfill and picked you up, thinking you were food. It accidentally dropped you at a nearby composting facility.

Go to the compost.

A person has placed you in a compost bin along with other fruit and vegetable scraps, eggshells, coffee grounds, and tea bags.

Go to the compost.

A person has placed you in a compost bin along with other fruit and vegetable scraps, eggshells, coffee grounds, and tea bags.

Go to the compost.

A person has placed you in a compost bin along with other fruit and vegetable scraps, eggshells, coffee grounds, and tea bags.

Go to the compost.

A person has placed you in a compost bin along with other fruit and vegetable scraps, eggshells, coffee grounds, and tea bags.

Go to the compost.

A shopper put you in their shopping cart to buy. You will be taken to someone's home to be eaten!

Go to the consumer.

A shopper put you in their shopping cart to buy. You will be taken to someone's home to be eaten!

Go to the consumer.

You sat on the shelf a little too long! A store employee didn't think anyone would want to purchase you and decided to put you in the compost bin.

Go to the compost bin.

You sat on the shelf a little too long! A store employee didn't think anyone would want to purchase you and decided to put you in the trash can.

Go to the trash can.

You have been placed in the compost where you decompose thanks to the help of decomposers like worms and bacteria. Your nutrients are released, you become humus, and are ready to be used as fertilizer on the farm.

Go to the farm.

You have been placed in the compost where you decompose thanks to the help of decomposers like worms and bacteria. Your nutrients are released, you become humus, and are ready to be used as fertilizer on the farm.

Go to the farm.

You have been placed in the compost where you decompose thanks to the help of decomposers like worms and bacteria. Your nutrients are released, you become humus, and are ready to be used as fertilizer on the farm.

Go to the farm.

You have been placed in the compost where you decompose thanks to the help of decomposers like worms and bacteria. Your nutrients are released, you become humus, and are ready to be used as fertilizer on the farm.

Go to the farm.

A consumer used you to make their favorite lunch, and there were bits of you left over after the meal. The consumer felt like composting was too hard. They decided to put you in the garbage.

Go to the trash can.

A consumer used you to make their favorite lunch, and there were bits of you left over after the meal. The consumer didn't know what can go in the compost, so they put you in the garbage.

Go to the trash can.

A consumer used you to make their favorite lunch, and there were bits of you left over after the meal.

Go to the compost bin.

A consumer used you to make their favorite lunch, and there were bits of you left over after the meal.

Go to the compost bin.

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

ROLL AGAIN!

